

Botanical Name	Common Name
Jasminum mesnyi	Primrose Jasmine	Origin	Family
An evergreen shrubby vine. Bright yellow flowers in the spring cover the cascading branches. A true jasmine, but with no fragrance as the name implies. Can get woody, support the main structure and let the rest spill down. Very cold hardy, loves full sun and heat.
Prunus - Peach 'Red Baron' semi-dwf	Peach	Origin	Family
A low chill peach tree with stunning dark pink double flowers in late February, March, and early April. The great flower display is followed by delicious yellow skinned fruit with a red blush, the flesh is golden-yellow, very juicy and sweet. Does well at the coast and anywhere else in San Diego. (300 hours chill). Prune after or during flowering, and bring cut branches in and use them as a cut flower. Spray for peach leaf curl while dormant, if a problem.
Rosmarinus officinalis (trailing)	Rosemary	Origin	Family Lamiace
A Mediterranean perennial shrub with a trailing habit to about 12” tall by 5’ or more wide. Light blue are flowers heavy in the late winter and spring. Makes a very drought tolerant groundcover when established. Likes full sun. Excellent for culinary use. Laces beautifully. Can build on itself and get taller over time if not maintained.
Ulmus parvifolia 'Drake'	Drakes Chinese Elm	Origin Asia	Family
A large tree providing a great form and structure for the garden. The trunk has a beautiful mottled trunk with an eventual height of 40’, but also a large spread with very nice lateral branching. The small foliage provides dramatic cooling and protection from the sun. Regular water will get it established, but it’s very tolerant of difficult conditions once it gets it’s roots in. ‘Drake’ is a selection that stays more evergreen in California and Florida, with superior form. Trees lace beautifully and looks really good when unlighted.
Westringia rosmariniformus	False Rosemary	Origin Australia	Family Lamiace
An Australian shrub that grows to 3’ with a potential for 6’. General compact and dense. The small gray foliage is complemented by the small white flowers that bloom intermittently throughout the year. Lace when young to set form, prune lightly, and frequently for an airy plant Very drought tolerant, prefers full sun, not picky about soil.
Westringia 'Wynyabbie Gem'	Coastal Rosemary	Origin Australia	Family Lamiace
An Australian shrub that grows 6’. The plant is lacy and airy. The small foliage is complemented by the small lavender flowers that bloom intermittently throughout the year. Lace when young to set form, prune lightly, and frequently for good air circulation. Very drought tolerant, prefers full sun, not picky about soil.
